The Career Counselling Department of GIIS Tokyo is organizing

University Fair 2023

The higher education landscape in Japan is dynamic and consists of many interesting fields with changing institutional priorities. As a result, students who would like to apply to a university or college in Japan must be prepared for diverse requirements and competitive University admissions.

At GIIS Tokyo, we support students through career counselling, education fairs and more. By doing this, we help our students increase their chances of admission to a university that matches their academic capability and area of interest.

The Career Counselling Department of GIIS Tokyo is organizing The University Fair, on 26th August, 2023 at the Nishikasai Campus Auditorium.

26th August, 2023

10:00 AM – 2:00 PM

GIIS Tokyo Nishikasai

Some Dos & Don'ts When Selecting a University

Look for courses that interest you.

Look for a school that ranks highly in the subjects you're considering. Choose those which best fit you in terms of location, finances, college culture, size, etc

Worry less about the overall university rankings.

Overall, university rankings are important, but they aren't as crucial as the rankings for the subject matter that interests you. For example, Harvard is ranked one of the top universities in the United States, but MIT is ranked higher if you're interested in engineering.

Avoid the temptation to 'check all the boxes' for the sake of it.

Admission counselors recommend that students focus on the suitability of the college based on their area of interest. Don't select a university simply because of its prestige – it should rank highly in the subject area you want to pursue higher studies.
